

The Bloomfield Record.

The New Twenty-Cent Piece.

The twenty-cent piece is joined under the authority of an act of Congress approved March 3, 1875. This piece is intended for convenience in making change, which, in that section of the country, is much needed. The design of this piece is as follows: On the obverse side is the sitting figure of Liberty, with the thirteen stars surrounding it; on the reverse side is an eagle with outstretched wings and a bunch of arrows in its right talons and an olive branch in its left, with the words "United States of America" above, and "Twenty Cents" beneath. To prevent this coin from being mistaken for the quarter dollar, it has been made somewhat smaller in size and has a smooth edge, whilst the edges of the other coins are reeded. The weights of the different coins as now made are as follows: The half-dollar weighs 12.92 grains; this piece formerly weighed 112 grains; the quarter dollar now weighs 56.45 grains; it formerly weighed 56 grains; the new twenty-cent piece weighs 77.16 grains, and the dime weighs 2.268 grains; it formerly weighed 3.91 grains. These are the only silver coins authorized, excepting the trade dollar, which is a commercial piece, and weighs 26.69 grains. Since the first of last January there has been issued from the mint between four and five millions of dollars in subsidiary silver coin. This coin has been transferred to the Assistant Treasurer at Boston, where it will remain until such time as the Secretary of the Treasury sees fit to commence the work of redemption. It is stated by the chief coiner, Col. Snowden, that if the mint was worked to its fullest capacity it would turn out $50,000 in small silver coin per diem. During last month the mints at San Francisco and Carson coined over one million pieces of the twenty-cent coin. The largest installment of silver received at the mint in this city for the same time was 40,000 ounces. This is now being worked, and when finished up will be duplicated by another large installment.

A New Plan for Getting Work.

There is an association of young persons at Springfield, Vt., known as the Industrial Workers, that furnishes all its members with constant work at fair wages, and a pleasant home at small cost, which is meeting with success so marked as to attract the attention of all thinking people. The members of this association are all young people who are willing to rid themselves of all bad habits, work steadily, dress economically, and save a portion of their wages; no others are taken. All the men who join are required to furnish a small amount of capital, and to save one-fourth of their wages, which must be invested in the capital stock of the association. Women are not required to furnish any capital in the wages and invest it in business. Those who do not comply with the requirements of the association are expelled, and those who wish to leave can do so at any time, and can withdraw their capital by giving six months' notice. The wages paid to each member is fixed by a board of directors and is proportioned to their skill and ability. They have a large dwelling or home where the members live and enjoy many privileges and comforts not usually found in families or boarding-houses. All pay a moderate price for their board from their wages. They have two new factory buildings, and a good water privilege and considerable machinery and are engaged in the manufacture of toy and house-furnishing goods for which they find a ready sale. They commenced business a year ago with five hands, and are now working forty-five; their sales for last month were over three thousand dollars, their payroll for the month was over twelve hundred dollars, and the saving of wages which was added to the capital of the company was more than three hundred dollars. The average amount saved from the wages of each man in a year is one hundred and fifty dollars, and of each woman fifty dollars. Many of the members have saved much more than this during the year, but this is all that is required of them. The aggregate amount saved by the present company in a year will be nearly five thousand dollars.

AN ASPIRING TWO YEAR OLD.

The Troy Whig says: "A day or two since one of our townsmen was engaged in painting the tin roof of his dwelling-house. A sixteen-foot ladder stood up against the house, the top of which projected about a foot and a half above the eaves. While busily engaged at work he was startled by hearing a childish voice say, 'Papa, me up high.' Looking up, to his horror and astonishment he saw his little two-year-old boy standing on the eaves of the house with one hand on a rung of the ladder. For a moment he hesitated as to what he should do, but finally he spoke quietly to the boy, telling him to stay there and papa would come and get him. The boy obeyed, and the anxious father reached him and taking him in his arms descended the ladder. He did not paint any more that morning. How the child managed to climb the ladder to the roof and then step off on the eaves and turn round and take hold of the ladder, all without falling, is a mystery."

Bonnets are worn this season with and without ribbons and streamers. Some have these streamers brought round from the back and loosely fastened in front. These are considered becoming.

Lacones.

Hearts may agree though heads differ.

Report is a quick traveler, but an unsafe guide.

There are two kinds of geniuses, the clever and the too clever.

Love labor; if you do not want it for food, you may for physic.

History gives us many illustrious villains, but never an illustrious miser.

Human mind should be a globe of humanity moving on the pools of truth.

Fashionable society is a merry-go-round that first makes us giddy and then sick.

They who are very indulgent to themselves, seldom have much consideration for others.

He who will not reason is a bigot; he who cannot is a fool; and he who dares not is a slave.

Good intentions will never justify evil actions; nor will good actions ever justify evil intentions.

Most men take conviction from an adversary as children do from a physician, with a struggle and a shudder.

To a liberal mind poverty is a stimulant, to a narrow one a refrigerant, selfishness is an opiate, and ingratitude a poison.

The true estimation of living is not to be taken from age, but action; some die old at forty, others infants at four-score.

None are more to be pitied than those who have the means of gratifying their desires before they have learned to govern them.

Many lofty intellects are like high mountains, covered with perpetual ice; others, of more ardent constitution, use their fire like volcanoes, for destruction.

Hens Eating Eggs—A Cure.—Having seen the question asked how to cure hens from eating eggs, and having been put to my wits' end to devise some means to stop them, I finally, by accident, hit upon a plan that I have never known to fail. One great trouble with many breeders is, they make their hens' nests too large, and with Brahmas and Cochins nests are near the ground, and in many cases the eggs are in view of the hen. This was the case with my nests. Having tried every available stuff, such as pepper, mustard, turpentine, and everything I could hear of, but no cure. I then took a common nail keg, cut it in two, or a piece about eight inches high, and placed it in the box where the hens laid. I then put in an egg; the old hen mounted the nest or keg and tried to reach the egg, standing on the edge of the keg, but it was no go; she then got down in the keg, but that was a failure, for she did not have room to get at the egg; after trying for some time she gave it up as a bad job. I have never had an egg eaten by the hens since then; all of the nests in my coops have a piece of a keg in the box, and have parts of kegs for nests. Do not make them too deep, but deep enough, so that the hen cannot reach the bottom when standing on the edge of the keg. You that are troubled with hens eating their eggs, try the plan; it costs but little, and I think you will never regret the trouble it will be to outwit the old hen.—Poultry Bulletin.
